Nazi Army Takes Prague As Natives Cry 'Pfui'

Adolf Hitler and his grey-clad armies marched to the east today, taking over the remains of Czechoslovakia in a deep thrust into Central Europe.

Hitler himself, in a train preceded and followed by armored anti-aircraft trains, rolled into Czechoslovakia to lead his army tomorrow in a triumphal march in Prague.

The Nazi army poured across the borders of the vanished republic and occupied Prague, Pilsen and other principal cities.

German forces moved into Slovakia, the newborn republic east of Bohemia-Moravia. Hungary's army, with German acquiesence, swept through the Carpatho-Ukraine region.

Cries of "pfui, pfui" and some scattered "heils" greeted Hitler's marching legions in Prague and other cities.

Chamberlain Raps Hitler Grab, Britain Halts Huge Czecho Loan

LONDON, March 15 (INS)—Carefully avoiding an outright accusation of "breach of faith," Prime Minister Chamberlain criticized Reichsfuehrer Hitler's seizure of Bohemia and Moravia today as "inconsistent with the spirit of Munich."

Addressing the House of Commons after Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax had told the House of Lords that Hitler's action "must inevitably postpone" the material benefits to European peace expected to arise from Munich, Chamberlain inferentially assailed Nazi occupation of non-German areas.

"Hitherto," Chamberlain said, "Germany has only incorporated

HUNGARY DEMANDS RULE IN RUTHENIA

BUDAPEST, March 15 (AP)—The Hungarian government today backed up its armies which were occupying Carpatho-Ukraine by sending an ultimatum to the local government of the territory demanding that de facto powers there be given the Hungarian general staff by 8 p. m. (2 p. m., E. S. T.) tonight.

Hungarian troops were within 13 miles of the Polish border in Carpatho-Ukraine (Ruthenia) when the Budapest foreign office sent the demand to Augustin Volosin, premier of Carpatho-Ukraine, at Chust, the capital.

The ultimatum demands that he hand over all actual powers to the Hungarian general staff, and said that prompt acceptance would "prevent bloodshed."

An Hungarian general staff communique said the commander of Czech troops in Carpatho-Ukraine had asked under a white flag for a delay of five days to complete the evacuation of his men.

In reply the Hungarian command demanded that the Czechs lay down their arms immediately. However, negotiations for an agreement continued.

The ultimatum to the Chust regime was the first hint that Hungarian troops, who started their steady advance yesterday, might be meeting some resistance from the Carpatho-Ukrainians themselves.

NEW YORK, March 15 (AP)—A wave of selling hit the stock market today, interrupting the calm financial markets had displayed over events in central Europe. Some shares quickly lost $1 to about $4 in the wildest decline in about a month.

PRAGUE, March 15—Amid a din of hostile shouts of "pfui"—the continental Bronx cheer — and some friendly "heils," German troops took charge of Prague today, assuming direction of the city which until yesterday was capital of the war-born state of Czechoslovakia.

At the same time, the Reich forces took over the other principal sectors of the Czech state—Bohemia and Moravia—enforcing the protectorate that brought the Czech people completely under domination of the Nazi Reich.

Swarming swiftly into Prague with their motorized equipment, the German troops quickly occupied the chief administrative buildings, the ministry of defense and the general postoffice.

BERLIN, March 15—The first German ruler of Bohemia since the days of Charlemagne and the Holy Roman Empire, Reichsfuehrer Hitler crossed the vanished border of Czechoslovakia today on his way to a triumphal entry into Prague.

Absolute master of central Europe, victor in the third of Nazi Germany's "wars without a shot," the Fuehrer left Berlin early this morning for Dresden.

From that picturesque old city he proceeded across the frontier to Leipmeritz, where he was expected to remain overnight.

Tomorrow, he is expected to take personal possession of Prague, proud and ancient capital of the Bohemian kings.

The special train aboard which Hitler traveled was preceded and

Battered Ship Makes Port; 2 Lost, 8 Injured

Smashed by the blizzard, her pilot house gone, two seamen lost overboard and eight more injured, the Boston fishing schooner Adventure limped into her berth at the Fish Pier today.

Two of the crew were in such serious condition that they were rushed to Chelsea Marine Hospital.

The dead:

Alec Muise, 58, of Commercial street, Lyn. He leaves a wife and a 13-year-old daughter.

William Nolan, 40, of London street, East Boston; survived by a wife and four children.

PERISHED IN SEA

Muise was born at Yarmouth, N. S., and had been a deep-sea fisherman since he was 16. In addition to his widow and daughter he leaves three brothers, Albert, Levi and Leon, also fishermen.

Both men perished in the surging sea when a mountainous wave swept the 110-foot length of the vessel and tore the pilot house completely away, according to Captain Leo Hynes of Melrose.

The two men most seriously hurt are John Dort, 47, of Beaufield street, Dorchester, and Manuel Marshall, 60, of Broadway, Somerville. Both received broken ribs, fractured shoulder bones and multiple body bruises.

Jerry Hynes of Pearson avenue, West Somerville; Germaine Porter, 50 of Pinkert street, Medford; Edward Hemeon of West Eagle street, East Boston, and Archie Hubbard of Winter street, Medford, were others of the crew in the pilot house when the structure was swept away.

TWO CLUNG TO WHEEL

One wall of the house pinned them down, but it saved them from the fate of Muise and Nolan. Skipper Hynes and Dort clung to the pilot wheel, in the face of the driving blizzard, to save the ship from overturning in 40-foot waves.

The craft, which sailed from Boston Saturday noon, was struck by the snow and gale at Georges Banks Monday afternoon at 2:30. Without a radio transmitter and isolated by the blinding snow, she fought for 24 hours to ride out the storm.

CUPID COVERS GROUND—Pretty bride is Mrs. Floyd R. James, Jr., former Doris M. Pride of South Boston. They were married in Shanghai, Feb. 4, in home of Judge Milton H. Helmic of U. S. Court for China. Husband is native Californian and radio executive.

SO. BOSTON GIRL WED IN SHANGHAI

South Boston to Shanghai?

Just a hop, skip and jump, for Dan Cupid!

And that chubby young archer was beaming happily today as a former South Boston telephone girl and a handsome and up-and-coming young American radio executive were revealed to be honeymooning in Shanghai's International Settlement.

F. R. James, Jr.

The bride is the former Doris Marie Pride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Pride of Covington street, South Boston.

The husband is Floyd R. James, Jr., now of Shanghai but a native of Pasadena, Cal.

The wedding ceremony was in Shanghai, Feb. 4, in the home of Judge Milton H. Helmick of the United States Court for China.

Beginning of the globe-girdling romance was a trip Miss Pride made to China to visit her sister, Mrs. Alice Pride Foutch, wife of Commander Orville D. Foutch of the U. S. S. Navpur of the Asiatic squadron.

At the Foutch home in Shanghai, Miss Pride first met young James, agent there for Radio Corporation of America.

It was love from the start.

Miss Pride had obtained a year's leave of absence from her telephone company job in South Boston, but it wasn't long before she sent word home the "leave of absence" could be made permanent.

Mrs. Foutch was matron of honor at the wedding. Best man was Sam Gilbert, boyhood friend of the bridegroom.

The bride is 24 years old. She is a graduate of South Boston high school. Her father is a retired postoffice employe.

Sea Widow Faces Ordeal

Clutching her 17-months-old son, Bobby, to her breast, young and pretty Mrs. Caroline Nolan of London street, East Boston, tearfully prayed for courage today to face the worst ordeal of her life.

He was lost at sea, swept off the deck of the fishing schooner Adventure, when the little vessel almost foundered off Georges' in the recent blizzard.

She knew her other three small children would return home from school in a few hours—and she would have to find words to tell them, somehow, that their daddy

4 GIRLS BEATEN; THREE MEN HELD

Three Dorchester men were held in $5000 each in municipal court today, the aftermath of attacks on four Boston girls, from 18 to 27 years of age, in four sections of the city.

John A. Galvin, 34 and married, of Norwell street pleaded not guilty to a serious charge in connection with an alleged attack on Dorothy R. Kelly, 27, of Erie street, Dorchester.

Miss Kelly told police she was attacked on the street two blocks from her home. Galvin was later arrested on a description she furnished.

Edward J. Dalton, 36, of Washington street, and Steven Vaughan, 32, of Barry street, both Dorchester, were charged with less serious counts in connection with attempted attacks on Margaret Walsh, 21, of Beacon street, Back Bay, and an 18-year-old Norton street girl, Dorchester, respectively.

Both pleaded not guilty. Dalton was held for the grand jury by Judge Richard M. Walsh; Vaughan's case was continued to March 23 and Galvin's to March 22.

Miss Walsh told police a man had beaten her in a Codman square, Dorchester, club, and had attempted to attack her; the other girl said a man leaped at her as she entered the backdoor of her home, but that her screams and struggling had frightened him away.

Jean Carlisle, 26-year-old waitress in a Back Bay cafe, said she was accosted by a youth in the Fenway near fire alarm headquarters. Her cries attracted the attention of a passing police cruising car and the young man fled after threatening the girl's life. He was not captured.

SENATE VOTE NEAR IN WRANGLE OVER MARCH 17 HOLIDAY

With charges of intolerance and "racial politics" still echoing, the State Senate met today for a final vote on the question of making March 17th a legal holiday in Suffolk County.

South Boston marched out its heaviest verbal artillery, firing shot after shot in the direction of Senator Arthur F. Blanchard, outspoken opponent of the legal holiday proposal.

Meanwhile, South Boston prepared for the greatest celebration in its long history—irrespective of the final Legislative vote.

The long parade route had been freed from ice and snow on orders of Public Works Commissioner George G. Hyland, who ordered extra workmen and automatic snow shovelers.

SENATOR STANDS PAT

Senator Blanchard held to his ground today refusing to retract his charge that the 17th of March locally is a "racial and religious holiday without national significance." Instead, he hurled new charges.

Latest to attack the Senator's stand was Captain John J. Murphy of South Boston, who upheld Harry Bishop, president of the South Boston Citizens' Association. Bishop had attacked Blanchard and been attacked in turn, for his stand in behalf of a legal holiday.

"I am somewhat ashamed," said Captain Murphy, "at the appellations which have been hurled at President Bishop from some quarters.

"So that there may be no misunderstanding, let me say at the outset that Harry Bishop is just a plain, ordinary American gentleman.

"He is neither Catholic nor Irish nor Democrat nor Hibernian. Harry Bishop is a Protestant, Yankee, Republican, Masonic American.

"The fact that he is president of the South Boston Citizens' Association lead many small minds to the conclusion that he is a 'South Boston Irishman.'"

Secretary Charles T. Brooks of the South Boston Citizens' Association said:

"I am shocked to learn of the return of the Tories to Beacon Hill."

Blanchard unloosed a general defiance of his critics and disclosed that he will be a candidate for mayor of Cambridge in spite of the "Irish monopoly" of the city. Said he:

"I understand I have been asked to apologize for my remarks in the Senate, although I have received no official request. If anyone deserves an apology, I am the one.

"The South Boston group seems to think I haven't a right to my own opinion.

"Bigotry is the first word to come from the mouth of a bigot. I am a good old Yankee, in other words, a middle class American.

"I am not particularly interested in foreigners. If they don't like this country, why don't they go back where they came from.

"As to whether March 17 is really such an important day, I am willing to submit the whole thing to Harvard historians to let them determine whether it has national significance.

"And I mean Harvard historians, not Boston College authorities. Boston College has been ruining education in Cambridge for years."

VETERANS TAKE A HAND

Hilary J. Sweeney, commander of the Boston Post No. 3, Irish War Veterans, last night chided Blanchard for his "radical and religious holiday" remarks.

N. E. States Rushing Aid to Flood Areas

As an army of workers still toiled in Boston and throughout the State, attempting to clear hummocked roads, the weather bureau today predicted higher temperatures and rain for tonight and tomorrow.

The prediction was taken as a new flood threat by officials of the six New England States, who already are preparing for battle should the freshets come.

Meanwhile, driving conditions in most parts of Boston were atrocious, with many traffic jams because of narrowed traffic lanes and with a sharp rise in property damage because of cars and trucks sliding off ice hummocks into other vehicles.

If it is any help, however, spring arrives at 7:29 a. m. next Tuesday.

SANDBAGS SENT OUT

In the Massachusetts preparation against the flood threats, Public Works Commissioner William F. Callahan has ordered sandbags sent to strategic flood centers of the state and has instructed his lieutenants to map out motor vehicle detour routes.

Experienced weathermen have stated that a sudden thaw, combined with a snowfall or rain, would plunge New England into the worst flood condition in half a century.

Reports from outlying sections in this and other New England states today indicated that many houses were isolated and many families actually snowbound, even now.

The body of John McManus, 29, of the South End, drowned Sunday night when he fell through a hole in Molasses wharf into the harbor during the blizzard, was recovered today. Police had been grappling for the body since Monday. His mother, Mrs. Mary McAndrews of Providence, R. I., was notified.

AXE HANGS OVER 61 MORE IN PURGE OF STATE OFFICES

Governor Saltonstall's purge of state department employment rolls earmarked 61 more workers today, 57 in the state Unemployment Compensation Commission and four in the Department of Insurance.

The governor's council approved temporary appointments of four men for the department of insurance, requested by Commissioner Charles F. J. Harrington.

They are Richard Drew of Adams street, Dorchester; Manuel Mendoza, Aquidneck street, New Bedford, and Henri Tessier, chairman of the all River Republican city committee, all to be temporary inspectors, and William Ward, Rockland street, Canton, to be temporary examiner.

MOSTLY HURLEY MEN

Four men in the department, it is understood, have been dropped to make way for the new appointees.

The 57 employes of the State Unemployment Compensation Commission to be dropped from the rolls on March 31 are principally appointees of former Governor Hurley, it was learned.

The new purge will affect all offices of the UCC, with each of the state's 42 offices to lose at least one worker.

These 57 employes, appointed by Hurley outside of civil service and not a few of whom were his campaign workers, were held over to instruct 57 other appointees taken from the civil service lists last February 1.

Today the identity of only one of those to go was learned.

GATELEE TO GO

He is John F. Gatelee, Jr., office supervisor attached to the Springfield office and the son of a prominent labor leader and former president of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor.

It was also learned today that more changes in personnel of the department will be made after March 31.

J. Edwin Doyle, head of the Unemployment Compensation Commission, admitted that the 57 workers, who have been holding down jobs as examiners of claims and office supervisors, will be dropped and there will be a later purge also.

It is known that Director Doyle has had several conferences with Elmer Nelson, liaison man between Governor Saltonstall and those seeking jobs under his administration.

RESERVE OFFICERS MEET

The principal speaker at the meeting of Ordnance Reserve officers assigned to this district held last night at 8 in the Walker memorial Building, M. I. T., was Lieut. Jackson J. Holtz, chief of the legal section and assistant United States attorney for this district.

Egyptian Princess Married But Fails To Attend Wedding

CAIRO, March 15 (AP) — The beautiful, dark-eyed Princess Fawzia, 17-year-old sister of King Farouk of Egypt, was married today to Mohammed Riza Pahlavi, crown prince of Iran (Persia), in a simple 15-minute ceremony at Abdin Palace.

The bride did not attend.

In fact no women were present. The princess, who first met the 20-year-old European-educated prince upon his arrival here 12 days ago, in accordance with Moslem custom, was secluded in a separate part of the palace. King Farouk signed the marriage contract on her behalf.

As a tangible token of marriage, the princess received a bouquet presented by an eight-year-old girl who headed a floral procession preceding the wedding.

Each guest at the wedding received a jeweled gold box of chocolates costing $1000.

Throughout the ceremony Egyptian warplanes showered the palace with rosettes combining the Egyptian and Iranian colors.

The marriage has great religious significance in the middle east for it unites two of the leading Moslem sects—the Sunnites to which Princess Fawzia belongs and the Shias of which the crown prince is a member.

Tech Youth Fined $60 for Fire In Brookline El Waiting Room

Charged with having chopped up a wooden police signal box to build a bonfire in the Boston Elevated railway waiting room at Coolidge Corner, Brookline, a Technology freshman was fined $60 in Brookline district court today.

The defendant, Bruce L. Dunbar, 20, is the son of wealthy and socially prominent Philip R. Dunbar, a Boston attorney living in Howland road, West Newton.

Custody of the boy, when he was eight years old, was at issue in a long and bitter court fight between his parents. The father won by an out of court agreement.

WANTED TO GET WARM

Today's fines were imposed on young Dunbar after Patrolman Bernard H. Sullivan of the Brookline police department had described the alleged bonfire incident.

He said young Dunbar apparently wanted to warm himself, as he waited for an "El" car at two a. m.

According to the witness, the boy first chopped up a broom he found in the "El" station, then poured over it what he thought was kerosene from a lantern. The "kerosene" was actually water, Patrolman Sullivan said.

He testified that when he arrived, young Dunbar had already chopped up the police signal box, severing its wires, and was trying to light the fire.

LOSES OUT IN SCUFFLE

When Patrolman Sullivan remonstrated, he said, the boy told him:

"Keep your hands off me, copper."

A scuffle followed, with young Dunbar getting much the worst of it. He was treated for head injuries at the Brookline police station.

His lawyer father was in court today. He conferred briefly at the bench with Judge Philip S. Parker. The latter then fined young Dunbar $50 on charge of destruction of the police box and $10 on a charge of drunkenness. He gave the boy two months to pay.

CHARLIE M'CARTHY'S KIDNAPING 'A GAG'

NEW YORK, March 15 (AP)—The mystery of Charlie McCarthy's "kidnaping" was solved today, and as the police suspected it turned out to be a gag.

The New York World-Telegram said its amusement editor, Frank Farrell, with the help of a friend, got away with Charlie during the absence of Edgar Bergen, the dummy's owner. He returned Charlie today, after amusing himself by taking the dummy for a taxicab ride and to several night clubs.

To get Charlie, Farrell and his friend sent Frank Brown, a midget bellhop from the Belmont Plaza hotel to the Waldorf-Astoria where Bergen was staying.

Brown was found trussed up with towels at 37th street and 11th avenue last night. He told police two men registered at the hotel had told him to go to the 17th floor of the nearby Waldorf-Astoria and pick up a large brown case.

Ethel Mulhern, a desk clerk at the Waldorf, where the ventriloquist was staying, said a man who telephoned and said he was "Mr. Bergen," told her to go into his suite, get the case containing McCarthy, and give it to the bellhop.

When he left the hotel with the case, Brown told detectives, two men pushed him into a taxicab, bound him and later threw him out and drove off with Charlie—who, in the absence of his spokesman, could make no cry for help.

Bergen, questioned by Detectives Jams McGowan and Frank Crimmine, said he had not discovered Charlie was gone until he returned to the hotel after attending a Broadway show with friends.

The detectives said the ventriloquist appeared upset and remarked the kidnaping "is the kind of publicity I don't want."

Operator in El Crash Collapses

Edward F. Hanley, 57, of Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury, operator of the Elevated trolley car which jumped the rails at Blue Hill avenue and Seaver street, Roxbury, killing seven persons, collapsed today in Dorchester courthouse.

The trolley operator, who had left a sick bed for a court hearing on a technical charge of manslaughter against him, was awaiting calling of the court session when he suddenly slumped down in the corridor.

Court attendants and police officers carried him into an anteroom where he was revived. Then he was sent to City Hospital in a police ambulance.

LOCK TRAPS THEFT SUSPECT IN AUTO

Lucky it was today for a Newton burglar that police discovered him, for he had inadvertently locked himself in the rumble seat compartment of a car and would have smothered had he not been released.

John MacGregor, alert chauffeur for a neighboring family, saw a man break the glass in a rear door at the home of James J. Lannon in Burnham road, West Newton.

Lannon is president of a South Boston gear manufacturing company in South Boston and the family has been away for several months.

The chauffeur told Annie Evans, maid in his household, and she notified police. Sergeant Patrick J. King and a squad of five men went to the Lannon home, where they found it necessary to break a window to enter.

A trail of damp footprints led the officers through the house and finally to the garage where, with drawn guns, they surrounded the automobile stored there.

The rumble seat was locked from the outside, but when the officers forced it open—there was their burglar suspect, his pockets stuffed with silverware, a watch and jewelry, cigarettes, two ladies' slips, two pairs of ladies' silk stockings and money he had taken from two banks.

At Newton police headquarters he was booked as John White, 39, of Pittsburgh, and was charged with breaking and entering and larceny.

'Bluebeard' Confesses to 4th Slaying

VERSAILLES, March 15 (AP)—Eugene Weidman, former German convict and confessed killer in a murder-for-profit ring, confessed to a fourth slaying in his trial here today.

The stubborn youth, who already had acknowledged to a jury the slaying of Jean DeKoven, Brooklyn dancer; Raymond Lesobre, French real estate agent, and Fritz Frommer, a German, admitted with a shrug of his shoulders that he had shot to death and robbed a French chauffeur, Joseph Couffy, on September 9, 1937.

VET LAW ATTACKED, DEFENDED

Veterans' preference in civil service rests a "specially privileged military class" and "hampers the state in itsm arch forward toward effective democratic government," the legislative committe on civil service was told at the State House today.

Henry R. Atkinson, president of the Massachusetts Civic League, headed a delegation which seeks repeal of the veterans' preference law, which was writtn by former President Calvin Coolidge when he was Governer of Massachusets.

"The present law is not based on merit but on sentiment," Atkinson said. "It makes no distinction between a seven-day service man and 18-month overseas veteran."

HOBART GIVES VIEWS

Donald A. Hobart, a former national commander of the American Veterans' Association, urged the committee "not to be swayed by maudlin sentiment and the cry that the veterans have been maltreated."

Representative Morris Kritzman of Boston, who spoke in favor of modifying the presen civil service regulations, told the committee he had been threatened.

"I've receive scores of phone calls in the past few days, several threatening to 'take care of me' and promising I would not be re-elected if I spoke for modification," he said.

PLEADS FOR YOUTHS

"The people are entitled to get the best qualified persons in public service."

Representative Adolph Johnson of Brockton, sponsor of one of the eight bills up for hearing, also approved modification.

"A whole generation has grown up since the war," he pointed out. "These young people aren't getting a fair deal. Let's give them a break."

Cured of Dope, Freed by Judge

Courageous fight of a Charles street jail inmate to overcome the dope habit won him leniency today in federal court.

The defendant, Isaac Saperstein, 40, of Woodsworth street, Dorchester, pleaded guilty to charges of selling, receiving and concealing narcotics.

But Assistant United Sitates Attorney William T. McCarthy told Judge Elisha H. Brewster:

"Saperstein has made a brave fight. He has cured himself of drug addiction. I think he has earned a chance to make a new start in life."

Judge Brewster put Saperstein on probation for three years.

PANCOAST, HEARST AIDE, DIES

NEW YORK, March 15 (INS)—George E. Pancoast, chief engineer and mechanical director of the Hearst newspapers, died today at Long Island College Hospital of pneumonia.

G. F. Pancoast

He was 77 and for 51 years had been associated with William Randolph Hearst.

Pancoast was the designer and builder of 14 printing plants operated by the Hearst organization, the inventor of the Pancoast color press and the adjustable "fudge" system—all advances in printing that stamped him in the eyes of his colleagues as an engineer and inventor extraordinary.

BEGAN CAREER HERE

Born in Massachusetts, he began setting type at 13 on the University Press at Cambridge, Mass.; later went to the Boston Globe, traveled West, and in February, 1888, got a job from the composing room foreman of the San Francisco Daily Examiner.

Soon he came to Mr. Hearst's attention there and became the publisher's secretary, a post he held for seven years.

He advanced then to mechanical chief of that plant and, shortly, to mechanical superintendent and chief engineer of the Hearst newspapers—a post he held until his death.

HONORED BY ASSOCIATES

In February, 1938, more than 750 executives, friends and associates of Pancoast in the newspaper and printing industries honored him at a celebration marking his 50th year in Mr. Hearst's service.

At that time, when asked what current problem he had in mind, he said:

"I never had a problem. My only problem was William Randolph Hearst, who looked into the future and wanted to build for the future."

Pope Pius XII Names Many Church Aides

VATICAN CITY, March 15 (AP)—Pope Pius XII today named Federico Cardinal Tedeschini archpriest of St. Peter's—a position which the Pope himself held before his elevation as supreme pontiff of the Catholic church.

The newly-crowned Pope made a series of appointments to high church offices for the administration of church affairs under his pontificate.

Francesco Cardinal Marmaggi was appointed prefect of the congregation of the council, succeeding Luigi Cardinal Maglione, who was named papal secretary of state last week.

Pope Pius granted private audiences to the Most Reverend Joseph M. Corrigan, rector of the Catholic University at Washington, D. C., and John F. O'Neil of Jersey City, N. J., member of the supreme board of the Knights of Columbus.

Another position vacated by the election of Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli as Pope was filled by appointment of Giuseppe Cardinal Pizzardo to be Prefect of the Congregation of Seminaries.

Jail 'Stand-In' Tells N.Y. Racket Suffering

Bruised in spirit and still bewildered by his amazing experience in New York, where, within five weeks of his arrival, he was in jail as a member of a notorious underworld organization, Edward McNally is back home today in Calais, Me., where he resumes his recital of what happened to him.

Yesterday he told how he was picked up on a street in Brooklyn, while hungry and looking for a job, by a policy-game racketeer who sheltered and fed him and landed him in jail.

Today he tells how he stayed there for three months, was beaten up by rival mobsters, and, at last, went before the grand jury to help break up the racket.

JAILED THREE MONTHS

The racket, incidentally, is the same which recently led to the conviction by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of Tammany leader James H. Hines.

"I was in the Raymond street jail in Brooklyn from June 3 until Labor Day," says McNally.

"I landed in New York in April, after the factories closed at home. I met an Edward Berg in Brooklyn, learned that he was a policy racketeer with three arrests, and, when he was arrested the fourth time, agreed to appear in court as his 'stand-in.'

"Something went wrong, though—and I landed in jail. So did Berg. The policeman who had arrested him under the name of 'George Palmer' knew that it wasn't me, and I guess he must have told the judge. Anyway, we both confessed.

"We didn't know that a special attorney general had begun a big investigation."

(As a result of this investigation half a dozen racketeers have been sent to prison, including Berg, who got a 15-month sentence, and dozens of police and public officials are under fire.)

"One day," continued McNally, "Berg told me two members of the Hilderbrand gang were in the jail looking for a chance to beat us up. It was true, for one day two fellows jumped on me and beat me into insensibility. I was sent to the hospital, and later moved to another cell. Still later they took me to the Queens County jail, and, at last, to the Towers hotel.

GLAD TO BE HOME

"There I was in a swell hotel, guarded by two detectives, waiting to go before the grand jury.

"They finally called me and I told all I knew about everybody involved. Why shouldn't I?

"After that Judge Brancato gave me a three-year suspended sentence and sent me home.

"Boy, am I glad to be here, and —NEVER AGAIN!"

Boston Doctor Tells Of Pneumonia Cure

DALLAS, Tex., March 15 (AP)—The medical profession has licked America's No. 1 killer, pneumonia, Dr. Charles F. McKhann of Boston said today.

Sulfapyridine is the drug which Dr. McKhann said cures a great percentage of pneumococcic pneumonias.

"People just won't die from pneumonia any more," the associate professor of pediatrics and communicable diseases from Harvard Medical School told the Dallas Southern Clinical Society last night.

The British invented sulfapyridine last spring, he explained, and this week it has been licensed by the food and drug administration and for the first time is available to every physician.

The British contend sulfapyridine is just as efficacious against streptococci pneumonias, Dr. McKhann said, adding:

"We have taken nearly every danger out of even the most virulent influenza. Children will not die any more from measles or whooping cough. La grippe may be unpleasant, but from now on it will never be fatal.

"All these diseases are dangerous only because they lower bodily resistance and open the way for pneumonias. Now that this hazard is eliminated, they will be all minor ailments.

"We know of no way yet to prevent respiratory diseases from spreading. Some interesting experiments are under way, however, with ultra violet light which kills germs.

"In some hospitals the air is continuously cleansed with ultra violet lights. We are working by ultra violet light before it is recirculated."

Wed 3 Times, Gets Year Term For Polygamy

Bigamy spells trouble, but polygamy spells double trouble.

So Charles Contanio, 36, who works in a fish market here but lives at 166 Summer street, Worcester, found out today when he faced Judge Frederick W. Fosdick for sentencing because he married three times without obtaining intervening divorces.

Despite a plea for probation, he was sentenced to serve a year in State's Prison.

His first marriage, according to testimony, was complicated by an abduction complaint when he eloped in 1929 to the Bronx, New York City, with Viola Facteau, then only 15. The complaint was withdrawn, however, and they were remarried in Worcester.

Mrs. Viola Facteau Contanio now lives with their two children at the Worcester address, "but is said to be suing for a divorce.

His second marriage was to a Lancaster woman, now dead, in November, 1936. Her name did not come into the testimony.

Then, here, he met, wooed and won Marie Casse of 27 Joy street, Beacon Hill, a hostess in the Venice Cafe. They eloped in November, 1937, to Keene, N. H. Marie, who is 30, became suspicious of his frequent trips to Worcester, investigated and caused his arrest.

"I think he has learned his lesson," said his attorney in pleading for probation.

"One year," said the judge.

DEFEAT OF SALES TAX SEEN

Opposed by spokesmen for more than 1,000,000 residents of the Commonwealth, the 2 per cent sales tax advocated by State Tax Commissioner Long seems destined for defeat in the legislature.

Speakers against the measure said they represented consumers, retailers, organized labor and the Grange.

The general tenor of the opposition was that the tax was an added and unfair burden to people in the low income brackets.

More than a score of legislators themselves joined with representatives of some 250 organizations in registering the mightiest opposition ever recorded against any bill.

Kenneth I. Taylor, legislative agent of the Mass. Federation of Labor, and representing more than 500,000 members, and Daniel Bloomfield, manager of the retail board of the Chamber of Commerce, flanked by scores of legislators, and prominent civic, fraternal and labor leaders, led the opposition.

Bloomfield warned the legislature that the public will retaliate at the polls, if any form of sales tax is levied.

Reardon Is Quizzed In Hurricane Suit

Testimony to the effect that although his own estimate of hurricane repair costs to buildings under his jurisdiction was $17,000, the State Department of Education was awarded $500,000 to spend by the governor's council of ex-Governor Charles F. Hurley was given today by ex-State Education Commissioner James G. Reardon.

His estimate of repair costs was contained in a letter, he said, which was addressed to Patrick J. Moynihan, chairman of the governor's special committee on hurricane repairs, Reardon testified.

Later, he continued, he was told by Governor Hurley that the latter had "found an expert on the matter who would take charge."

TELLS OF HURLEYY ORDER

And, finally, he was told further by the governor that the expert, Architect Edward T. P. Graham, had completed his survey, and that he, Reardon, was to "stay in his office and sign the contracts."

The testimony of the former State education commissioner was the high spot in the morning session of a waived-jury hearing on suits and counter-suits involving unpaid balances of m ore than $500,000 to contractors engaged by Graham to do the work.

The Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers' Association seeks to have made permanent injunctions restraining payment of the money; the contractors, in counter-suits, are seeking to force payment.

There are 11 suits in all, and yesterday, Judge George F. Leary, presiding, refused to dismiss Reardon as a defendant because he is now no lnoger in office.

The letter to Moynihan, Reardon testified, was written September 23, a few days after the hurricane. On Sunday, September 25, he said, he was introduced to Graham by Governor Hurley, who identified the architect as "the expert who will take charge of the repair work."

On the afternoon of Saturday, October 15, he said, he received the telephone call from the governor directing him to stay in his office to await Graham and the contracts, which he then signed.

REFUTES GRAHAM

After the telephone call, he said, he turned to Business Manager George Varney of the Education department and said:

"That was the governor."

"I supposed it was," Varney replied.

Reardor denied that he had ordered Architect Graham to remove the roof from May Hall at the Framingham state school, or the brick veneer from another hall; that he had authorized a "clean up" of the athletic field at the Bridgwater college, or the building of concrete steps at the Fitchburg athletic field. Graham had previously testified that he had.

"I told Graham," said Reardon, "that I wouldn't sign the contract which included the concrete steps."

Ask $7,644,100 For Flood Work

A $7,644,100 three-year flood control program was recommended to the legislature today by a special commission which declared delay in the program will "invite disaster, endanger lives, property, health and industrial security of Massachusetts."

The commission asked that $2,500,000 be appropriated this year and a similar amount next year with the balance left to the "discretion" of the 1941 legislature.

In announcing its figure, the commission said this was the estimated cost of emergency spring clearance projects recommended by six consulting engineering firms after a survey of all streams in the state.

Flood control, the report said, was "the most important problem confronting this legislature."

Riley's Files Read At Ouster Hearing

Personal files allegedly kept by Frank E. Riley, ousted head of the state division of commercial motor vehicles, were read into the record today in a hearing before the public utility commission at the State House.

It was announced that evidence offered in support of 17 formal charges against Riley would be completed before adjournment later today.

Commission counsel, pressing the prosecution of the charges, interpreted the files read today as showing that Riley issued trucking permits without hearings, in violation of the statue.

According to the records, he also issued common carrier and contract trucking plates without permits, attorneys for the commission alleged.

Riley's "personal files" and other official files of the commercial motor vehicle division were read by Paul A. Fitzsimmons of Belmont, assistant rate engineer in the public ultilities department.

Meantime, counsel for Riley prepared to introduce "100" defense witnesses, probably beginning tomorrow.

Two early witnesses today charged that Riley transferred an unrestricted carrier permit against the expressed wish of the owner within the Reich people of the German race.

She is now taking military occupation of places where there are people with whom there is no racial relation.

REGRETS EVENTS

Personally, I particularly regrets what has now occured but do not let us be deflected from our course.

"Let us remember that the desire of all peoples of the world still remains concentrated on hopes for peace and a return to the atmosphere of understanding and good will which has so often been disturbed.

"The aim of this country now as always is substitution of methods of discussion for methods of force in settlement of differences.

"Though we have suffered checks and disappointments from time to time, the object we have in mind is of too great significance to the happiness of mankind for us to lightly give up or set to one side."

BRITAIN 'PAINED'

After officially declaring Britain is "pained and surprised" by the seizure of what was once Czechoslovakia, Lord Halifax made it clear Great Britain regarded such peaceful purchase Hitler could obtain information to enable him to tell leading powers of that nation into the greater Reich.

"British guarantees regarding the Czech frontier were always regarded as transitory in nature," Lord Halifax said.

"They have now ceased to exist.

"His Majesty's government can not hold itself any longer bound to this obligation.

"I do not want to make any specific charges of breach of faith, but I cannot admit that anything of the kind that has now taken place was in the minds of His Majesty's ministers at the time of Munich, or was any such eventuality contemplated.

"The German government has now, without any communication with the other three signatories of the Munich agreement, sent troops beyond the frontier laid down at Munich.

"Even though it may be claimed that what has taken place occurred with acquiescence of the Czech government, I cannot but regard it as inconsistent with the spirit of the Munich agreement.

"These events cannot fail to be the cause of disturbance in the international situation and bound to administer a shock to confidence.

"They are all the more regrettable since confidence was beginning to revive and offer a prospect of concrete measures which would be of general benefit.

"Unless there is some material change in the situation as it now appears, there must be inevitable postponement of these measures."

It was the most colorful scene [illegible] Hitler's armies had been received since the start of the program of expansion.

Today's reception was far different [illegible] on the previous night, when Nazis were welcomed in Sudetenland last October.

MARCH THROUGH SNOW

The crowds seemed sad. Most of the onlookers were silent, glum.

The German troops marched into the heart of Prague through a blinding snowstorm. The first contingents were composed of infantry units, war equipment trucks and motorcycle detachments.

A double cordon of Czech police lined the streets through which the troops passed and behind the police, on all sides, were tearful, sullen faces. Occasionally a snowball was thrown by someone in the crowd at the German soldiers.

Several times when the "Pfuis" became exceptionally loud rifles were pointed at the crowd.

Traffic was thrown into chaos as the Germans imposed their "right hand" traffic rules while the Czechs stuck doggedly to their "lefthand" regulations.

GERMANS IN FRONT

The front ranks in the street crowds were allotted to German [illegible] of Prague. They waved flags and threw flowers in the path of the Germans.

Behind came the cordon of Czech police, then, five or six deep, stood the Czech residents. No trains ran [illegible] the Czech borders and no one was permitted to cross the [illegible]. And [illegible] announced a curfew will be imposed at 4 p. m. and that it probably will apply to [illegible] as well as Czechs. It [illegible] that all telephone [illegible] may cease this afternoon.

At Bruenn, other German detachments received an enthusiastic welcome from the German population. Flowers were strewn on the streets [illegible] artillery batteries [illegible] and armored cars. Nearly all the residents of the city came [illegible] to welcome the troops despite the [illegible].

CZECHS DESPONDENT

The army units arrived there to find themselves greeted with shouts of:

"Thank our Fuehrer! Sieg heil!"

But the few Czechs that mingled with the crowd were obviously despondent.

By noon virtually all of Moravia and Bohemia were in German hands. The occupations of the cities and towns were carried out by small forces of Germans. At all points the contacts between the German troops and Czech troops and police were unofficial.

Convoyed by tanks and artillery, heavily armed regular army and [illegible] troop detachments reached [illegible] ...

A Fine Business

Any business that contributes to a home-environment of attraction and appeal to young folks . . . that will make them WANT to STAY in their homes, and love it, is a fine business.

Any business that contributes to the rest and comfort, and mental peace, and entertainment of tired toilers and old folks, is assuredly a fine business.

More than any other, the home-furnishing business contributes to ALL of these things . . . and I am glad and proud to be in it.

To have been able, year after year, to help youngsters just starting their marital careers plan out their homes, in which were centered all their hopes, their ambitions and their dreams, has been a rare privilege.

We're still doing it . . . but each year we're able to do it better than ever before—because of what we learn as we go along.

And we're doing it for more homes now than ever before—because more and more families are learning about the many services, the many helps, that always go into every transaction, but never go into the price.

Berry, Taylor At Paramount

It will be Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer week at the Paramount and Fenway theaters, with "Stand Up and Fight" in which he even goes so far as to engage that screen baddie Wallace Beery, in a couple of barroom brawls.

It is an adventure romance, dealing with the bitter conflict between railroad and stagecoach transportation in the 1850's. Taylor plays a happy but impoverished Southern gentleman. Beery is seen as the tough, unscrupulous boss of a stagecoach line, owned by Florence Rice. Taylor is forced into Beery's employ but loses himself out of his service with names provided by the railroad when he discovers Beery's chief business is smuggling slaves.

Featured in the cast are Helen Broderick and Charles Bickford.

KATHARINE HEPBURN SCORES HERE IN NEW BARRY PLAY

'Philadelphia Story' Opens At Colonial

By PEGGY DOYLE

The Philadelphia Story" it is pretty generally agreed, puts Katharine Hepburn back on the stage in a role that fits her like a Bedford cord model, and returns Philip Barry to Grade A rating as the author of his family reunion brand of Holiday type of sophisticated comedy.

The sixth and final Theater Guild Union in Theater Society subscription play of the Boston season opened a two weeks engagement at the Colonial Theater Monday last following a well received New Haven premiere.

That Barry wrote "The Philadelphia Story" specifically for Miss Hepburn is easy to believe for she has never had a role that permitted her highly individual talents fuller expression. That it will stay on through Manhattan and inevitable Big Time is a certainty. And that we'll be seeing the spirited young lady from Hartford in the screen version some time next year is something else you can depend on.

As a matter of fact Katharine must be doing certain reckoning as to what effect the present prospect of making the New York critics eat the words they uttered in her behalf in "Jane Eyre" will have on her future. Inspired, but let's not go into THAT.

HOUDS AUDIENCE

"The Philadelphia Story" on its present tour is playing to capacity audiences. And it is easy to understand why. It has the well known Barry touch, an authentic air of "A Evening." Not since you and I would never miss a Barrymore engagement in search of amusement.

"Story," in a nutshell to you, is largely concerned with the approaching second marriage of Tracy Lord (Katharine Hepburn), only daughter of the wealthy, socially prominent and estranged Seth Lords of Philadelphia, and how a midnight swim (minus a bathing suit or any kind of swim suit) with the debonair alternative writer of a fashionable magazine "Spying" the town's most occasional "peeker" of the wedding eve scheme.

The people on the Colonial stage are people you might have known all your life and not mind it a bit. From the proud and bumptious young Lester Lonergan, brat of the Lord household, to Joseph Cotten the very nice party of the first part in Tracy's mild marital try to Frank Fenton the [illegible] was until he but his successor, the casting is [illegible]

IT'S KATIES PLAY

Van Heflin, tired of being merely a distant relative of a sensational headline hunter, also got a passel of attention on his merit for his sincere and never overdrawn characterization of [illegible] who is not a Communist "with a feather in the Left wing." Chester Roth, who is also responsible for this story, supports well in more ways than one. Vera Allen's Mrs. Lord is very fine and so is Dorothy Stickney playing "Papa" Lord to Van's big golden of the great Dane Terry no less. The Life of Christ

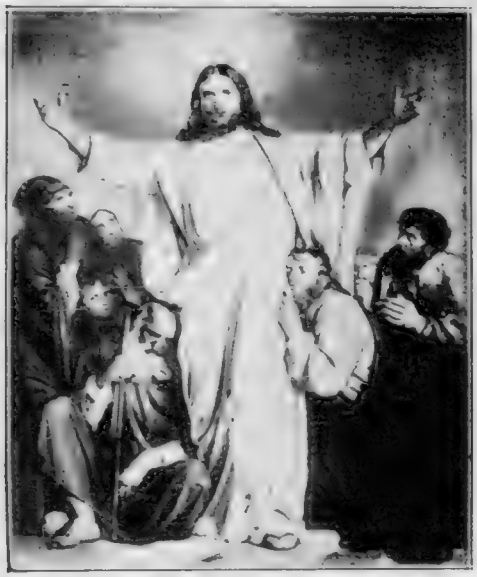
CHAPTER SEVENTEEN



"Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

By COLLIN CLINE

TODAY'S PICTURE, showing our Saviour extending His arms to the world, was painted in 1865 by Karl Heinrich Bloch, great Danish artist.

It was inspired by Jesus' own words, which Saint Matthew tells us were:

'Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.

'Take My yoke upon you, and learn of Me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls.

'For My yoke is easy, and My burden is light.'

There could be no better thought for Lent; no more inspiring message for the unsettled world of today.

Christ, in words so simple a child can understand them, tells us that the only security is FAITH—faith in the power and existence of God.

As Ella Robinson recently wrote, He calls us to pray "like a son of God would pray—proudly bravely asking to share a great life rather than be spared a hard one, asking to be given a cross rather than a cushion."

No matter what our problems may be, no matter who or what we are, He is waiting always to hear the things we choose to tell Him.

TOMORROW, the story of Christ's holy life upon earth continues in the Boston Evening American, and a beautiful painting by Paul Gustave Dore will show Jesus and His Disciples in the cornfield.

FLOOD CONTROL again becomes a subject of paramount concern in New England. Only continued cold weather can stave off inundations in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts meteorologists say.

All agree that heavy rainfall, combined with a sudden thaw, would cause a repetition of the devastation of three years ago.

Thus, we are made to face the grim fact that the POLICY OF INACTION, which has obstructed effective flood control in this part of the country, might very easily prove costly not only to property but also to human life.

Responsibility for this inaction rests wholly upon our government officials who know how to stop floods, BUT WHO HAVE NOT STOPPED THEM.

Everybody knows control of rivers is NEVER IMPOSSIBLE.

Comprehensive and effective plans for the restraint of flood waters throughout this section have been worked out by United States Army engineers.

But in every instance they have been BLOCKED BY POLITICS.

Now, if we unfortunately experience floods, the millions that should have been spent for PERMANENT CONTROL PROJECTS will have to be used for relief and rehabilitation.

AND STILL OVER EVERY VALLEY COMMUNITY WILL HANG THE THREAT OF ANOTHER AND PROBABLY MORE SERIOUS CATASTROPHE A YEAR HENCE!

Perhaps current fears will induce our New England governors to sit down at the conference table with Washington officials and iron out all the differences that have blocked flood control. At least, everybody hopes so.

Human Side of News -:-

by EDWIN C. HILL

FEMININE CAPRICE, which, like the wind, bloweth where it listeth, is sometimes a symptom and sometimes a cause of historic change.

The great Japanese silk markets of Yokohama and Kobe are booming because women are suddenly, and for no known cause whatever, going wild about ribbons. Bunching them in gay rubber bouquets on their hats, tracing silken streamers from hats to garments, working them into scarves and weaving them into neckwear and petticoats.

FUTURE PRICES in spot silk are held up around six cents above previous quotations. Piece goods are higher than at any time in the last two years.

With all this the guys are breaking out everywhere in wampler, to say nothing of lampers, as one more spring approaches and they find they can have a gay ambassade of color like a bathing cap with a yard or two of gaily colored silk draped down from the hat.

As a result ribbon mills are running overtime Japan, with its depleted economy and its vital wartime stake in silk prices, is trying to put on the brakes to prevent wild and disastrous speculation. She will make the most of the new urge in blonde, red, brunette and intermediate heads here and there and everywhere.

THE RIBBON HAT
For Easter Parade

But what about women's styles as an index of prevailing social or political trends? Some students have made much of this. They note that in England, toward the end of the grim Cromwellian reign, just before the restoration, there was a nation wide outbreak of feminine fripperies—ribbons, lace, extreme and elegant elaborations of dress.

THEY CITE other instances of similar nature and find that when the girls hang their winter garments of depression into the front of spring we're all going to step out.

Check back on women's sudden vertimes for plumes and feathers last year and it ties with the election upsets. And don't forget the also casual upheaval. That kind of hair fixing gave the lesson days of the French Bourbons an up to the three feet high construction of Marie Antoinette.

The Republican National Committee might look into this. They are collecting signs and portents of the restoration just now. Keep an eye on the ladies, Mr. John D. M. Hamilton.

Girl About Town -:-

by MARGUERITE DOWNEY

IF you're happy about the Lambeth Walk passing out of vogue, your joy will be short-lived. A new dance craze has hit the night club mart and seems destined to convert us all into acrobats. Nu-sky-s.

The "Kokey-Kokey" has been introduced in society in New York, Detroit and Boston by the Marshall Field heirs—Jack and Harry. They combined the best features of the Lambeth Walk, Big Apple and Paris Chair, wrote a score for it and threw it to the cafe set, hoping to make all customers get a good looking family.

A big circle is formed, facing the fun begins. First six steps left foot on and left foot out. Then right foot on right foot out. Next you start on your arms using the same routine, and every extremity has been given a workout. If you're a stag and you toss in a couple of steps while pirouetting about.

It's all too giv and very amusing, but it IS a giddy romp—sort of 10 o'clock recitation classes.

FOR INGENUITY nothing equals the cards sent out by the Paul Pfeffers, Brookline society-ites, on the arrival of a daughter. On pink pasteboards done up in typically theatrical style is the announcement.

Paul and Pauline Pfeffer present Hi-ness to Pfeffer Millions" starring Sherry Pfeffer, February 28, 7:37 p. m. On the stub usually given over to the seat number is the baby's weight.

The obstetrician gets a credit line as director and the costuming is done exclusively by Curity.

HERE'S THE "KOKEY-KOKEY", NEWEST DANCE CRAZE
Nancy Holdsworth (left) Explains Steps to Jean Halladay

ONE OF THE MOST confusing stunts of the season is being worked by two debutante cousins, Cornelia Baker and Nathalie Simpkins, who are dressing alike but in different shades.

The pair of them, tiny blondes, look enough alike to be twins. And when they get into their distinctive togs, usually of their own design, what sport they have befuddling the stag line!

Food for WPA -:-

by HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, March 15—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is playing with a new plan to dispose of some surplus products which seems to be an improvement especially in the way he proposes to go about it. It is not to be slapped down on our economy all at once, like a lid on a kettle, as some other New Deal experiments have been. It will first be tried out in four or five localities.

The Surplus Commodity Corporation has been buying up price-depressing surpluses of butter, eggs and perishables, like fruit and vegetables. These it has been giving away free to people on relief.

THIS IS haphazard method. It has been criticized by retailers because it puts government in competition with them.

Charges have been made that some of the people who get these goods resell them for what they will bring and buy liquor and the like with the proceeds.

Mr. Wallace's new plan is aimed at all these criticisms and difficulties. Instead of having the Surplus Commodity Corporation buy these products and give them away, he proposes to use that money to increase WPA and other relief benefits by practically the amount per person in each family by which the present wage fails to provide a balanced diet.

But this money is not to be paid in cash. The part now being paid, which studies show is available for food after rent and other expenses, is to be paid in a stamp colored, say, orange.

SECRETARY WALLACE
Moves With Caution

These stamps will be good for food but not for liquor.

That is all there is to it. Like all untried plans, it is probably full of holes. It certainly adds the profits of private distribution to the cost to the government of getting this surplus consumed. Mr. Wallace tells me that he believed this method would prove as cheap as the present one.

HOWEVER that may be, this plan approaches the surplus problem in a new way, which is much closer than the present practice to the principles of our economic system.

It takes government clear out of business. It appears to channel Federal money spent to solve one great problem—unemployment—more directly toward the solution of another—farm surplus.

You Can be Beautiful

Bubble Over With Youth

By ARLINE GOULD

FACES bubbling over with vigor as youth are clean . . . And if you've despaired of ever having a sparkling fresh look, you may discover yourself at last on the road to real beauty when you try a deep pore cleansing cream that actually "bubbles" away skin impurities!

Radically different in every way based and formulated on new ideas of beauty-making that originated in Hollywood, this effervescent skin cleanser promises a new era of deep-pore cleansing.

It looks like a coffee frappe in its beautiful gold and white jar, there is a refreshing scent of almond to it, and one of its ingredients is tiny flakes of pulverized almonds . . . but what it is that makes it bubble far down into the pores, and come up with all the grime leaving the skin firmer and clearer looking, we cannot say!

They say there's a thrill to the very first time you use it, and we can vouch for that! Smooth this cool stuff all over your face and shortly afterwards it all but disappears . . . then dip your fingers into your water, rub in gently to fating upward motions . . . a thousand tiny bubbles appear (no, it's guaranteed there's neither soap nor wax in this) and as your face feels marvelously cool you continue to rub this time with a cloth saturated in warm water to remove every last bit of bubbles and deeply embedded grime.

If you've used it as a pre-bedtime treatment apply a night cream otherwise you'll use a day or throat cream or a liquid oil to smooth the way for powder, since the skin will be so thoroughly cleansed powder won't stay on it any better than it would on a six-year-old's shining countenance!

You can also give yourself a facial facial this way . . . every time you cleanse with the Lux cream!

Badly Fitting Shoes a Woe

When the toes are thrown out of position because of the wearing of ill-fitting, short or narrow shoes the effect on the muscles is deplorable. The tendons of the foot are under a strain. A hammer toe may result and that's no fun since it often happens that the surgeon must cut it off. Even losing a cute little pinkie toe because of vanity!

If feet had proper care and proper casings they would be almost as flexible as the hands. If you have foot ills, try walking on your toes in your bare feet, of course. It will strengthen the poor little pigs that are kept in pens that are often unsuited to their outline.

Don't forget that hurty feet cause wrinkles, grouches and an awkward figure. Be kind to your walkers. They haven't done anything

STEVE CATCHES FISH FOR GLORIA

CHAPTER 15

"H [illegible] Bill," Steve said. "Did you hire me to listen to your stories or to catch you some fish? Four-fifty a day. I get, but you don't pay me double to hear what it'll cost you if I have to hear any more of 'em yarns."

"Shut up, Bill. This place looks good. Under those trees. What do you say?"

"Not near so good as back there where we come from. I know this like the do my own back yard."

"Think I'll try a spook on the first one."

"Frogs is better. You can't beat a frog. Now you take a good frog. And waste the legs at the knees so the bass won't be striking at no fur legs. Use a weedless hook—"

"I have a deep aversion to frogs."

"That don't make no odds. Lookee here." Reaching into a gunnysack he extracted a struggling peeper and slapped it sharply against the gunwale. It stiffened the frog. Expertly he snipped off the legs and ran a hook through the lips.

"See that there branch hangin' down over the water? You watch close. Mr. Frog right at it and let him plop into the water."

STEVE FAILS to hide thoughts from his veteran guide, who asks: "What's come over ye? Used to be a different kind of feller. You ain't in love, are you?"

But [illegible] Bill's directions. Instead of over a limb it was [illegible] and instead of a quick wrist motion it was a long sweeping arc.

"I knew how it was," the frog explained. It landed out at the proper distance from the boat but the jar threw the frog's head and it jumped off the hook. It was something seemed to explode under it—the line whipped free of the tree.

"There's fish enough," Steve said as he noted the new line. "Here, you primitive."

"Been casting for over 70 years never seen one in to reveal a frog."

"Maybe you're right, but how about a good clean job like this one here for instance? You can't beat a spook."

"Bah! Lu-ke-ye-ed never hear you. Has a great name for frogs, too."

Steve grinned. He had heard the name from him many times before. He had a stock though, that the demonstration was always extremely convincing. It was up to him to shame what a jaded public could do.

"Pull over a little," he said. "Hang on." Steve made a long cast into the weeds. The frog spurted the water. He let it float, then began to reel it in, stopped again, worked the rod tip.

"What's the matter with me?" Steve asked himself. "Snap all to it."

Maybe it was the fish there was something to matter with.

"Something the matter with the water?" [illegible] "Perhaps [illegible]"

But [illegible] Bill's words [illegible] how we at this frightful hour. Bi-ze backs leave something to be desired."

The morning wore on. Steve hauled in a fighting six-pound. Several hours later he hooked a real record breaker.

"Hoop! Duty fair," Bill [illegible] "What do you say we eat?"

"YOU AIN'T IN LOVE?"

"It's still early. What d'you suppose I came out here for? To get fat? Beautiful morning. Where's the poetry in you, Bill?"

"Mebbe I got poetry in me but that ain't nothin' again havin' some fish in me, too. You want a shore dinner today, didn't you?"

"Of course."

"Takes time to cook it."

"But I'm not hungry, Bill."

"You ain't? It's noon." He cast a shrewd eye at Steve. "Say what's come over ye? Used to be different kind of feller. You ain't in love, are you?"

"In what?"

"Don't git mad. I just asked the worst thing I could think of, to stiddy you. Them sighs you been fetchin'." He shook his head. "Weak stomach, shouldn't wonder. Take spoonful bakin' soda. Lets eat."

They beached the skiff on a gravelled bank where the big fish marched down close to the water's edge. Steve stretched out comfortably on a bed of pine needles and lazily watched Bill get a fire going and put the coffee and potatoes on to boil. Then he dipped the bass fillets in egg batter and rolled them in a pan of flour.

Steve propped his back against a tree. Hm. Something about the simple life, all right. Gave a man a sense of values.

Bill looked a glance at him. "What you murmurin' over?"

"Nothing."

"One o' them funny stories o' yourn?"

Steve was drifting off into a warm, dim haze, and forgot to answer. He sighed, and closed his eyes. Wonder what she was doing now. Bathing in the lake? Wonderful, creative Eve—just the softest goddess. It didn't matter. Couldn't let her go now whatever she had done.

Maybe he could square it for her. Of course, he could. He'd never had any experience at squaring things with the police, but there was his father. His father had influence. If—

"Say wish yer daddy could see you now," Bill broke in on his musing. "I'll make him realize what a mussin' up you've been."

No danger. He was too far off to be worried.

"But, Daddy is he?" You don't know what it's like to be spoiled. Should've had paternal [illegible] an appearance any one of these days. Knows you're up here with Bill's wife, or him."

I asked him to come along. He wouldn't.

"Aaaa, ain't the way to git around him. Let him come for awhile and he'll come all right. You see."

Steve felt something cold in his chest. Good Lord! Suppose the old boy did turn up! But he dismissed the thought from his mind and determined not to let it come back.

"Come an get it!"

He turned from the smoking fish and crisp potatoes to pour corn-blend coffee. A man couldn't ask for more.

After a time came a couple of fellers setting right the times in the town with a good supply o' bass at a pot of a time." Bill said. "It's the women folks that's the trouble. Keep themselves to home is what I say."

EXPERT OPINION

"Oh, I don't, Bill. Now you take a woman, of course you're dead right. But now you take some other kind."

"All women are alike."

"What do you know about women?"

Bill cocked a glance at him. "What do I know? Man and boy I been with 'em, the size for sixty. All sorts mixed up of 'em, and a couple o' dozen. What I don't know about women ain't worth [illegible]."

But Steve scarcely heard. [illegible] Bill snorted. "You're [illegible] you don't know nothin'. A pretty face and a fair to middlin' ankle will hook you every time."

"Not a woman in the world I'm afraid."

"I'll be the women that thank up the [illegible] and the men as lives in 'em. I'll bet you my boat that right now there's a lovesick man somewhere [illegible] himself the ornerest galoot in town as the sweetest thing on earth, and not been able to see that a woman what I make a fool out of the general run of jackasses what God turn when his turn come."

Steve crashed as he sprawled on the warm ground. With his hat over his eyes, he pretended to sleep. It was a pretty spot. Too bad Bill had boiled up like this.

"But it's when they git in trouble and want you to perfect 'em that they git really dangerous." Bill ran on as he scoured his pans with sand. "Soft words. A few tears. And where are you?"

This was getting strangely personal. Steve began to glare into his hat. In a dark deep pool at the foot of a giant rock, a bass broke water with a splash that made him sit up as though he worked on springs.

Bill, he was as big as a horse! Did you hear him?"

Bill squinted along the water. "Feedin' on frogs," he declared soberly.

"No frogs!" Steve struck a pose. "Shoot if you must this old gray head, but I'll fight it out on this line if it takes all winter! Throw that stuff together, Bill! Come on!"

Steve wandered back toward the trailer, a little before dusk, dreaming of fish and Gloria, and happy in the thought that he might be able to persuade her to come out with him tomorrow.

But how would he explain her presence to Bill?

He shrank from explaining anything to Bill. Well, postpone the fishing, then. A man couldn't fish all the time.

Maybe they could go swimming together. Give her a bathing suit so that she or would be, um—

His quickened his steps. Wonder how she'd like the record breaking bass mouth he was bringing home. That ought to fetch her more than any words from him. There was a delicacy, a subtlety, a dainty persuasive quality about a good fresh bass that beat all the poetry in the world.

A KING ON WHEELS

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 52), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.

Just get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a reliable "WOMAN'S" tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and those disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life.

BRADSHAW Exchange Act Plea Supported in Hub

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW
Financial Editor

Boston brokers are taking a keen interest in the drive for revision of the Securities and Exchange Act . . . So much so that a committee representing the Boston Stock Exchange is in Washington at present . . . Along with representatives of 17 other national securities markets . . .

Franklin T. Hammond, Jr., is serving as legal advisor for the local group . . . As he usually does in matters before the SEC . . . William R. Lang, of Long & Nash, president of the exchange and chairman of the standing committee on finance . . . And Harry M. Stienemetz, of Schirmer, Atherton & Co., chairman of the committee on securities and holder of several other important exchange posts, complete the local group.

Other than the fairly broad changes asked to remedy the sluggish flow of capital, little is known of the definite action exchange representatives will obtain . . . There have been numerous tentative outlines.

These, however, contain such a mixture of suggestions requiring both SEC approval and new legislation, that little light is shed on possible immediate accomplishments of the brokerage mission . . .

So far we have heard nothing of margins . . . It seems to be the taboo subject . . . And yet one of the shrewdest State Streeters we know thinks relief along such lines is the thing needed . . . And he does not mean do initial margins . . . Instead, he feels relaxation of regulations freezing accounts would accomplish wonders . . . There are too many "inactives" on brokers' books . . . And a bit of leeway after original purchase is all that is required . . .

UNITED FRUIT CO . . . Held its annual stockholders meeting today in Jersey City . . . The big Boston concern had a successful year . . .

Arthur A. Pollan — Charles H. Stockton — Thomas D. Cabot

. . . in 1938 . . . Arthur D. Perlin, vice president, told those attending the meeting . . . And because appropriately owned securities in the fund have increased in the line of asset protection with late American conditions . . . With which the federal government is now striving for better trade and control of values . . . Net effect . . . Have operations of the Great White Fleet been expanded materially . . . Purchases of such commodities as fruit, sugar, coffee and other products have already expanded . . . And there is no better way of protecting American purchasing power and wage standards than through efficient economical operations . . . Stockholders were also advised that the Board of directors had been increased to twenty members . . . Charles H. Stockton and Thomas D. Cabot both of Boston have been elected to the new posts . . .

NEW OFFICE . . . For Graham, Parsons & Co. in Providence is announced today . . . Under the management of John K. H. Nightingale, Jr. . . . who is well known in Rhode Island investment circles . . .

A graduate of St. George's School and Williams College, Mr. Nightingale has been active as engaged in the securities business since 1928 . . . It makes the second New England office for Graham, Parsons & Co. . . . The first having been opened in Boston in 1928 . . . The firm was formed in Philadelphia 43 years ago . . .

REVISED PRICES . . . The new list issued on markets by the Nashua Manufacturing Co. does not include advances . . . But it does include a strong hint they are on the way . . . All quotations are subject to mill acceptance on a day to day basis . . . The company states present prices are uncomfortable . . . And that the new list is a precautionary measure . . . Which will enable it to move quickly in the event a situation such as that of three years ago develops . . . Heavy sales from all sections are reported . . . Just as they were then . . . And only by being alert to a sharp increase in sales and costs can break-even levels be established on short notice . . .

GERMAN MARKET UP, OTHERS DOWN

BERLIN, March 15 (AP) — Germany's absorption of Bohemia and Moravia today brought moderate buying into Berlin securities markets and raised prices an average of 1 or 2 per cent.

Mining, metal, shipping and other industrial shares were favored.

At the close, markets became somewhat irregular and fractions of earlier gains were lost.

On the money market Czechoslovak exchange was quoted only nominally.

LONDON, March 15 (AP) — Share prices were marked down in today's stock market as traders took to the sidelines while central Europe tried to salve the latest political rash.

Czechoslovak loans broke sharply, the 8s off 9¼ points at one time. International shares retreated while British funds held comparatively steady.

Industrials closed at early lower levels and commodity shares quietly fell back.

After the close of the official session of the stock market prices on the Street market weakened sharply on Prime Minister Chamberlain's statement and on weakness in Wall Street.

PARIS, March 15 (AP) — The Bourse steadied in late dealings today after an early selling wave. Rentes closed unchanged to 5 centimes lower and Bank of France was off 165 francs. Suez Canal and Suez Canal were narrowly down.

LIVERPOOL, March 15 (AP) — Wheat futures ended at ten shillings and ⅛ to a penny above the settlement in Central Europe as trusted short covering.

Magazines Of Hearst Group Profit

NEW YORK, March 15 (AP) — Richard E. Berlin, executive vice president of Hearst Magazines Inc., said today the Hearst magazines in 1938 had an operating profit of $3,000,448.

Net profit from all operations after interest, taxes and depreciation but before capital loss written off on the sale of the "American Architect," was $3,000,448.

Reporting on the 1938 operations of individual publications in the group, Berlin said:

"Good Housekeeping Magazine had an operating profit of $2,583,202; Cosmopolitan Magazine earned $393,857; Harper's Bazaar showed a profit of $480,461; Motor Magazine earned a profit of $103,466; Motor Boating had a profit of $44,374.

"American Druggist, American Architect, Town and Country and House Beautiful operated at a total loss of $271,809."

Berlin added that, based on the advertising already published and booked, the earnings for the first quarter of 1939 would show a substantial increase over the same quarter of last year.

Longwood Snubs Tennis Gigolos

A STARTLING POLICY HAS BEEN adopted by the Longwood Cricket Club toward those high-ranking tennis gigolos who seem to subsist on wind and imagination while touring the social centers of the U. S. L. T. A. Longwood has discontinued fostering players of either sex "who desire their transportation paid to and from tournaments, or wish free board and lodging during competition."

AUSTEN LAKE

Longwood has decided to lead a pious life in keeping with strict amateurism and forsake the old hypocrisies of the tennis business as it has been conducted both here and abroad. By taking this pledge it implies that there have been times when its tournaments were not run according to amateur blessedness.

This attitude will dumbfound the professional-tennis-amateurs who have hitherto accepted a doubtful social and industrial status during tournaments and were on a par of having to pay for their upkeep with the prospect of a meal at the end. The important turnstile attractions of both genders, who have a recognized cash value at the gate are insulted at the thought of paying their own haulage and pasturage for the sake of entertaining American tennis at Chestnut Hill. And should none of the tennis clubs decide to give no more pickings, the term "gigolo" will be forced into honest toil or open professionalism and be remembered only as photographic fossils on the clubhouse walls.

What Longwood has in mind, and is to be commended for is to develop a class of non-commercial kids regardless of social rating instead of the barnstorming experts who devote the years of their youth to the game and life by invisible means.

No Slap at Professionalism

THIS POLICY, I AM ASSURED by Mr. Irving Wright, is not to disparage professionalism, like that of Vines, Perry and Budge, where the services and rates of pay are honestly stipulated. The pro fighters, pro ball players and pro hockey players have an undeniable respectability. They associate on equal footing with such play-boy intellectuals as William Lyon Phelps of Yale. But ringers in any line of sport have no standing. The practice of employing ringers on athletic teams and tournaments is regarded by chaste people as a very low practice in which the ringer receives neither the honest wage of professionalism nor the gentle consideration due an amateur. He is a hybrid.

Colleges do something like this in football under the pretense of appearing not to do so. And, if you are listening next autumn, you are sure to hear at least a dozen yowls that certain varsities are bringing in young men with fine school football records and exploiting them for three years of box-office appeal before turning them loose into society to look for work they are not equipped to perform.

The Vulgarians Got In

THE HISTORY OF TENNIS TRACES the game back to royalty and in this country it started as a dude pastime for the elite of Newport, R. I. It was first played for pleasure. But gradually the hoi-polloi took it up and became more expert than the first families, so that they were brought in and presently were knocking the spots off their social betters. Thus, by easy stages, the habit began of paying the hoi-polloi a little something to live on and a little something on the side, and after a while the best of the tennis-bums discovered they could enjoy a life of oriental leisure by following the tennis calendar from one center to another.

I find in the current Centennial book, published by the major leagues, that in the beginning baseball clubs were also leisured organizations for the idle rich. The first club was either the Knickerbockers of New York or the Nonpareils of Cooperstown, N. Y., whom the author of the book frankly considers snobs, who never played more than a trivial brand of baseball and kept priggishly to themselves until after a while, other clubs were formed in the middle 1870s and the Knickerbockers began to get challenged by greasy workmen, cobblers and livery stable swipes.

The British Started It

SO, LIKE THE NEWPORT TENNIS people, later on, the Knickerbockers, Nonpareils and larger clubs were unable to control the rules of the game, or the social aspects either. And so, says the Centennial guide, they began enticing the leading players of the smaller clubs to join their teams and, of course, this was just a step from the custom of paying the athletes for their time lost.

Nor is the practice subsidizing athletes peculiarly an American trait, despite the tendency of our English cousins to point to our little muckerisms. The British themselves were not free from the same snide habits when rugby football began to develop in the early '80s from an unorganized scramble into a regulated control of box office propositions.

One finds in the Encyclopedia under the heading "football" the paragraph, "In its original form football was played for diversion by comparatively well-to-do men. But the growing popularity of the football clubs caused the game to be played for admission fees. Thus temptation arose to reward the players for out-of-pocket expenses. At the same time the richer clubs began offering inducements to the better players to associate with them and these inducements were usually acceptable in the form of money."

So, the major leagues and the tennis people need not hang their heads in the misapprehension that they discovered the original sin of paying amateurs. Nor is Longwood unique in being overcome by conscience and resolving to lead a finer amateur life. Many of the football colleges of which Pittsburgh is the most recent example, have suffered similar qualms, and recovered to pay the amateurs all over again.

It's a kind of growing-pains cycle.

ART ROSS RANKS BRUINS ABOVE '29-'30 CUP CHAMPS

By BILL GRIMES

"How do you think that your 1938-39 N. H. L. champions compare with the Bruins of 1929-30, who amassed the all-time high of 77 points?" we asked Art Ross as a matter of

"Well, I'll tell you," replied Uncle Arthur, as he pushed aside the cup he was polishing last Sunday night on Rangers, "that 1929-30 aggregation was a pretty fast combination but I feel it lacked the balance and didn't meet up with the opposition of this year's team.

"During the 1929-30 season, the National Hockey League was a ten club two division circuit. But, we had four weak sisters with us that year, namely Pittsburgh, Detroit, Americans and yes, Toronto.

The Smoky City outfit beat the record that I figure the original Bruins would retain for all times. They won only five games, nipping us by one contest. Detroit and Americans had only 14 victories to their credit when the season ended and Toronto could boast of but 17.

ONLY ONE GOOD LINE

"As I recall it, the Bruins won 38, lost 5 and tied one which if my arithmetic is correct totals 77 points.

"In 1929-30, we had a great first line. Cooney Weiland, Dutch Gainor and Dit Clapper but our other offensive combinations were nothing to brag about.

"Now we have three good lines. The Kitchener kids are tops in my book. I wouldn't trade them for any trio in the N. H. L.

"They are fast, smart and rarely in the penalty box. In fact, I was just looking over the statistics and discovered that Bauer and Dumart have served only two minutes in penalty boxes this season, while Schmidt has drawn one major and four minors.

PETTS RECORD SUFFERS

"Then, we have the Cowley line, with Roy Conacher and Mel Hill on the flanks. And, it isn't necessary to tell you that that combination is also very dangerous. Cowley is a great playmaker and Conacher is the leading scorer of the year.

"Gordie Pettinger is another clever center ice man, but unfortunately Ray Getliffe and Charlie Sands haven't been up to par and "Petts" record has suffered.

"However, I believe that Getliffe is finding himself and if he is, he'll show the fans some real hockey during the playoffs. Sands hasn't been right since the night he took that bad fall in New York and now, of course, he's out for a few days with a 'Charlie horse.'

BRIMSEK A WONDER

"In my opinion, we have the best defense in the league. Frankie Brimsek was a life saver. Just imagine a boy, playing his first year in the N. H. L., coming up with ten shutouts. That is one of the most remarkable feats in the annals of hockey.

"We have two great outer defense combinations, Eddie Shore and Jack Portland and Dit Clapper and Jack Crawford. Shore has never been as effective as this year. True, he hasn't been allowed to rush as frequently as in the past, but when he gets the 'go' sign, it's really a thrill to watch him travel.

"In the past, Shore wasn't back on the defense enough to judge his ability to stop attacks. But he has shown himself to be the best defensive man in the league this season. Big Jack Portland has developed noticeably this year, and the same is true of Jack Crawford, who is another Shore in the making. And, too, Clapper has remastered the art of defense play and he's bad news to even the trickiest offense.

WIL LTURN ON HEAT

"I realize that we are going to be opposed by a very smart outfit in the Rangers. They have the speed and brains to be troublesome. But I'm confident that we've worked out a system which will take the measure of Lester Patrick's Streamliners.

"We will take things easy for a couple of days, but I intend to open up against Canadiens on Sunday night, for I believe that one hard, fast game before we enter the elimination series, will be of tremendousnum benefit to the Bruins."

Herb Schmidt, Bruins center iceman, hit a tough spot in the conflict with the Hawks which the Bruins won 4 to 2

UNTOLD STORIES OF THE RING

BY JACK CONWAY

(Copyright, 1939, by the Boston Evening American and Jack Conway)

The Dempsey-Sharkey bout in New York on July 21, 1927 for thrills rivaled the famous punching duel between Dempsey and Firpo.

Following Sharkey's five-round knockout of Jim Maloney, Tex Rickard saw the possibilities of a meeting between the young Boston heavyweight and the former world's champion. Dempsey had been training in the mountains of California, and was anxious to regain the championship he lost to Gene Tunney in Philadelphia.

Billy Gibson, manager of Tunney, strenuously opposed a meeting between Sharkey and Dempsey.

I visited Gibson's office in New York one day in the company of Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager.

"I will guarantee that Sharkey will be Tunney's opponent in the September bout if you turn down the Dempsey match," said Gibson addressing Buckley. "Sharkey is red hot as a drawing card. He wouldn't be a better attraction if he knocked over Dempsey in a punch.

"I am afraid a Sharkey-Dempsey bout will beat Tunney without an opponent. The bout may be a bad one or the winner may meet with an injury which will keep him out of action for a long time.

[illegible]

TOOK DEMPSEY'S NAME

[illegible]

"I am going to try to knock Dempsey out in the first round," Sharkey told me before the bout. "I saw Tunney stop Dempsey dead in his tracks with a right-hand punch to the jaw in the first round in Philadelphia. Dempsey never got going again. I think that blow won the title for Gene."

[illegible]

[illegible] sey plunged forward, his guard was low and Sharkey drove a fierce right-hand punch to the chin.

The Dempsey advance halted for a fraction of a second, then came sweeping on again. This time Sharkey opened fire with both hands.

Sharkey's punches landed on Dempsey's jaw. The old Manassa Mauler sagged a bit, and tried to reach Sharkey's body with left and right hand punches, but the Boston heavyweight moved away.

As Dempsey came at Sharkey again, the latter scored with another right hand smash to the jaw. It was a terrific blow and Dempsey's knees buckled, but he didn't go down. At the bell Dempsey was groggy.

DUFFY AIDED DEMPSEY

Billy Duffy, who was in Dempsey's corner, later told me that a mixture of [illegible] was all that revived Dempsey in the second round.

Duffy wanted me to try the mixture some day at the 16th hole while playing golf. He insisted it would refresh me and that I might even be able to break 100. I told Duffy I would take his word for what the mixture would do. It was a preparation which had been used for years by sucking lime rinds.

Between rounds Gene North, Dempsey's farm or business manager, told Billy Gibson that it was [illegible] that Sharkey would win in the second round. Sharkey [illegible] had Dempsey bombarded [illegible] of Dempsey. The former champion was groggy, but kept [illegible] forward in the face of [illegible] punishment. Dempsey was in poor [illegible] when the bell sounded.

Sharkey tried to floor Dempsey [illegible] third round, but once [illegible] Manassa Mauler weathered [illegible]

SHARKEY'S MISTAKE

Sharkey turned his head to speak to Referee Jack O'Sullivan in the seventh round. Dempsey nailed Sharkey with a left hook to the jaw that spelled K. O.

It was [illegible]

[illegible]

Sharkey [illegible]

[illegible]

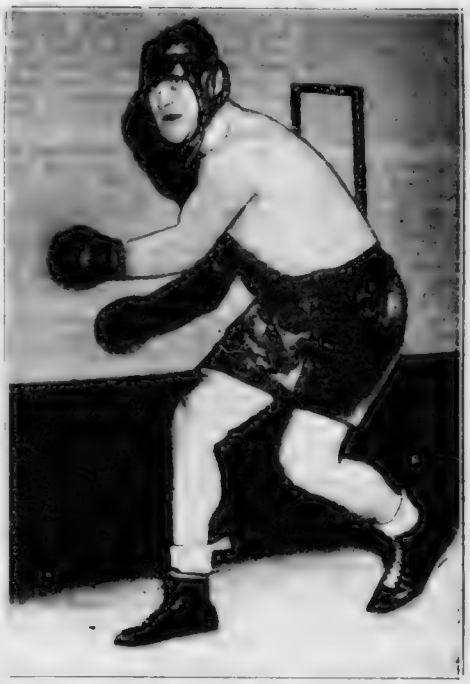
"I was young and had to learn," said Sharkey.

[illegible]

"Why don't you fight Sharkey again?" I asked. "You can get $500,000 for your end of the purse."

"I'll never fight Sharkey again," replied Dempsey: "He hits too hard. I might fight that big guy Carnera or Risko or Heeney, but I don't want any part of Sharkey or Tunney. They have speed, and my legs are not what they used to be."

In tomorrow's article of Untold Stories of the Ring, Jack Conway tells the story of Tunney's first fight with Harry [illegible].



Jack Sharkey in his climb to the world's heavyweight championship was a willing worker. Though gym work is more or less distasteful to most boxers, the Boston heavyweight was always ready for the vital routine grind.

Tom Casey Takes On Bull Martin

Bull Martin, who hasn't been [illegible] since his return here faces more trouble tonight at the Boston Arena when he meets Tom Casey, youngest of the famed Irish wrestling family in the feature bout of Sam Pierce's rough grappling carnival.

According to Bull's sizeup of tonight's battle, two falls out of three, he not only has to beat Casey but likewise the referee who will be Jim Mooney of South Boston, former heavyweight boxing star.

Casey, kid brother of Steve, the Canadian former champion, was a fighter in himself before finishing the hardest route to become a wrestler, in his career at the U. S. Industry and left of fight. Tom Casey will no doubt wind up wiping his Sunday punch on the Bull [illegible] to unsnag his huge locks. And Mooney will be needed to keep them with a bell.

Myer Cohen [illegible] Dundon goes against Abe Pierce in the semi-final and [illegible] to go with a 30-minute limit.

BEES, RED SOX LOCK HORNS IN 4 GAME SERIES

Cronin to Show Off His Rookie Talent

By HERB FINNEGAN

SARASOTA, Fla., March 15—It would be more fitting, perhaps, if the Sox and the Bees were to open their four-game series on St. Patrick's Day, but, notwithstanding, there are several treats in store for the Bees' followers when Boston's major league representatives clash here tomorrow.

They'll be getting a glimpse at right fielder Ted Williams, who couldn't get a hit down here last year, but who this year has been hittting like the champion he was at Minneapolis last summer, and who has been throwing like no Red Sox right fielder since Harry Hooper.

They'll be getting a peak at Jimmy Foxx's successor-to-be, left handed, 21-year-old Paul Campbell.

They'll be seeing a different Jim Tabor, loose when he was stiff-backed a year ago, poised where he was rough a year ago, and a vicious hitter.

CONFIDENT TEAM

They'll see a Bobby Doerr who will threaten Charlie Gehringer and Flash Gordon for second base honors in the loop this year despite his youth.

They'll see a more polished Johnny Peacock, a kid whose one year in big time has done him a lot of good.

They'll see a young pitcher like Woodrow Rich who will remind them of Grover Cleveland Alexander, both in delivery and mannerisms, a kid who has unlimited prospects.

They'll see a Red Sox team which has confidence in its ability to go places this year, far different from the one which staggered around down here without any pitching a year ago.

We are anxious to get a glimpse of Eddie Miller who played against the Sox last year down here while he was with Kansas City and who is being hailed by enthusiastic scribes as the find of the season.

SOX START ROOKIES

And we're anxious to see if Al Simmons is doing the hitting he's said to be doing; also if Buddy Hassett is really pushing Milton's Ellie Fletcher off first base; if Debs Garms ever will learn how to play third base; if Jimmy Outlaw is doing any better in the Bees outfield than he did at third base for the Reds a year ago.

Joe Cronin probably will start his rookies, but that won't make it a poor game because these "Kenmore Squares" of Hughey Duffy's are far better than some Red Sox varsity teams we have seen in the past.

Cards Play B's Today

By JOE CASHMAN

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 15—The St. Louis Cardinal has undergone a striking metamorphosis. He used to resemble a ruthless hawk, proud and daring and defiant.

He's evolved into a sweet-singing canary, a domesticated pet, priding himself on his parlor etiquette.

The Redbirds who answered to the names of Frisch, Dean, Durocher, Delancy, Collins and Orsatti have flown to other fields.

Only Messrs. Martin and Medwick remain of the flock that terrorized and ruled the baseball roost just five short years ago.

Martin has been tamed by the simple process of making him a captain. Medwick, a little of the old spirit left, stubbornly steps outside the fold—a holdout.

Watching the current Cards is to look at just another ball game played in the modern Alphonse-Gaston spirit.

Not that these 1939 St. Louisians, who furnish the opposition as the Bees open their Grapefruit campaign this afternoon, may not do well in the coming National League race.

With Medwick and Mize, they have the strongest two-man punch in the circuit. They're not badly off for pitchers with Warneke, Davis, Macon, McGee, Weiland, Daffy Dean, et al.

They think Jimmy Brown will go at short and Don Gutteridge, fleetest of big leaguers, at third. They're hoping Capt. Martin has another good year of outfielding left and that Stu Martin will fill the bill at second.

Should all these problem children come up to expectations, the club could easily be pennant contenders.

If the new Redbirds happened to fly to the world's championship though, they wouldn't attract as many customers or create as much stir and could have the old Redbirds running last.

As one observer aptly put it: "The Gas House Gang has run out of gas."

Boston Man Rows For Cambridge

LONDON, March 15 (AP)—Hugh Parker of Boston, third year engineering student, will row for Cambridge against Oxford in "the boat race" on the Thames, April 1.

Bright spots in the Bees rookie parade for 1939. Arthur Doll, left, Johnny Hill, center, and Johnny Pezzullo, right, are all battling for the right to remain on the roster and according to reports from the Southland, the outlook is favorable.

BILL'S SPORT-O-GRIMES

The Bruins are resting today but they will hold a short workout tomorrow at the Arena and on Friday they'll be back at the Garden . . . "Dit" Clapper and Charlie Sands will not see any more action until the playoffs . . .

Clapper has been hobbling around with a broken little toe for a week and Sands met up with a leg injury in the first period last night, which will keep him limping for a few days . . .

Eddie Burke, who played with the Tigers and the Cubs a few years ago, is in town . . . Eddie is refereeing in the Antam League and doing a bangup job . . .

I ask you, is Art Ross sweet on Roy Conacher? . . . And, why shouldn't he be . . . During his first year in pro hockey, young Conacher has scored 24 goals, more than any other player in the N. H. L. and has been credited with 11 assists . . . If he'd been playing in a city where the official scorers are more lenient, Conacher would be far out in front of all contenders for top scoring honors . . .

The Kraut line hasn't been scoring of late . . . But, that's a good omen . . . They will strut their stuff during the playoffs . . . Try and convince Roy Conacher that there's a better play maker in hockey than Bill Cowley . . .

Mike Costello is the custodian of the Prince of Wales Trophy . . . Frank Leahy, Ed McKeever, Johnny Druze and Johnny Del Isola, the new Boston College football coaching staff, pulled for the Bruins last night and looked like very promising hockey "nuts" . . .

It was Frank Leahy's first appearance at a hockey game . . . Looks like Hamie Moore, one of the assistant trainers of the Bruins, is going off the deep end shortly . . . It's very serious when they wait for you outside the Garden . . .

Bill Cowley has a total of 40 points for the season, topping Roy Conacher by five . . . And, the three Dutchmen, Schmidt, Bauer and Dumart are well bunched . . . Looks like Rangers are coasting . . . They were knocked off by the Red Wings last night . . . Ab Demarco was signed by Bill Stewart, who saw him play amateur hockey . . .

Eddie Froelick, the Chicago Black Hawks trainer, is in the South with the Kansas City club of the American Association . . . He was with the Brooklyn Dodgers until Leo Durocher was made manager.

The Shadow And Sonny Await Gong

The diamond studded belt, emblematic of the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, will be at the Boston Garden tomorrow night, and if Gus Sonnenberg is successful in continuing his comeback campaign and defeats The Shadow for the title, the handsome trophy will immediately be presented to him.

Yesterday, Gus made sure the belt would be in the vicinity. "In the past defeated champions have tried to keep the belt. If I win the title I want the belt, and Promoter Bowser tells me it will be mine right after the bout if I can pin The Shadow."

The semifinal will have Harry Jacobs, walking man mountain from California, vs. Mayes McLean, while preliminaries will include Angelo Cistoldi vs. Marshall, Lord Albert Mills vs. Joe Maynard, Jack Smith vs. Jim Casey and Everett Kibbons vs. The Sheik.

Don Deacon Leads Minor Hockey Loop

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 15 (AP)—Don Deacon, Pittsburgh's hefty center, further increased his International - American Hockey League scoring lead last week emerging with a 58-point total, in figures made public at the headquarters here.

LOOK, DOC — I FOUND OUT TODAY THAT THIS MARS PLACE IS REALLY A STAR! — NOW WHAT DO YOU MEAN I'M GONNA RAGGLE AS A GUY FROM MARS? — NOW'D I GET HERE — DOWN A KITE STRING? — WHY DON'T YOU BILL ME AS SOME GUY FROM EGYPT — TUTTI-RAGGLIN' MUMMY! — SAY, THERE'S SUMPIN!

Marquette Six Beats Juniors, 7-3

Club Marquette of Pawtucket, R. I. pushed over a 7-3 victory over the Junior Olympics of Boston in the final game for the New England A. A. A. U. hockey championship before a large crowd at the Arena last night.

The young Olympics rallied three times to tie the score, forcing the Rhode Island team into overtime with the score three-all at the end of the regulation game.

Red Sox on Short End With Dodgers

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 15—With Rookie Frank Dasso yielding three circuit wallops, a makeshift Red Sox nine bowed to the Brooklyn Dodgers, 6-3, here today.

The Hose looked like they might pull the game out of the fire in the ninth frame when Tom Carey caught hold of Jack Wyatt's fast one and belted it over the wall with Berger on base, but the rally ended there.

'Pug-mailion' Gets Harry Kelley

Bees Fan Cheers Stand by Clancy

HARRY KELLEY, who trains Henry Chmielewski and other fistic stars, asked me to remain in town for the night to see "Pug-malion." Harry remarked that he understood it was a top fight picture. I told Kelley I would take in the picture with him, and that I would root for at least one knockout.

The name Pygmalion on the posters outside of Loew's State caused me to ask Kelley whether he was sure it was a fight picture. Harry quoted Jerry Zullo and Emergency Kelley as his authorities.

I was surprised when I didn't see a single pug in the picture. Leslie Howard, the Thespian, for a time looked as if he was going to get a bit pugnacious with Miss Wendy Hiller, but he didn't.

In case you're interested, the movie is the story of a flower girl who is taken in hand by a professor of phonetics who makes a wager he can train her in six months so that she will be able to hold her own in the best of society.

The athletic world is filled with characters who have come from nowhere and then reached the high spots.

Gene Tunney, Jack Sharkey, Babe Ruth, Jack Dempsey, Benny Leonard, Joe DiMaggio and Billy Conn are a few of the athletic stars who came up off Dead End street to occupy the best house on Main street.

Apart from the money athletes are able to earn they also have the opportunity to travel and meet leaders in the various walks of life. Travel is one of the best forms of education. We are always impressed by things we see more than by those we read about.

Case of Newspaper Reporters

ONE CAN also understand various types of people best by meeting and talking with them. This is why great newspaper reporters are classed with the best educated people in the world. They have gained their knowledge from meetings with all types of individuals.

It isn't uncommon for a staff reporter to interview an important banker in the morning, and later in the day talk with a resident of Dead End street over some crushing heart ache.

As we left the theater, Harry Kelley told me the picture "Pug-malion" was almost as interesting as Henry Chmielewski is when the latter is tossing punches. In parting, Kelley asked me to listen to the sound of heavy punching in the direction of Portland, Me., on next Tuesday night.

"I have the 'Machine Gun' in with Tommy Jones of Baltimore on that night," said Kelley.

"Machine Gun" happens to refer to Chmielewski, and is not a relative of "Pug-malion."

Another Cheer for the Bees

THE DISPUTE over the relative value of the Red Sox and Bees has the fans talking. Many of them have written letters to this column. William Dim of 26 Museum road, Roxbury, writes:

"As I read your column every day, it wasn't any accident that I read the one containing the letter from Mr. Clancy. Good boy, Mr. Clancy. I am certainly glad you had the nerve to express your opinion publicly. I know many people whom you have pleased, and I am the most pleased of all.

"I have been very eager to write in to some sports writer about the Bees and Sox, but I never had the nerve. Besides, I could not have done as expert a job as Mr. Clancy.

"The other day I turned to the sporting section of the Boston American and all I could see was Red Sox this and Red Sox that, with the exception of one column written by Joe Cashman, which was about the Bees.

"That same evening I read the Daily Record, and again it was Red Sox all over the paper. Herb Finnegan had two articles and Sam Cohen one about the Red Sox. Even Bob Considine was also raving about the Red Sox. The hard working Bees had only one account of their workout at Bradenton.

"Maybe it is the wealth of the Red Sox that influences the sports writers. Certainly it cannot be their ball club.

* * *

"I AM SICK of going to Fenway Park and see a pop fly bounce off the left field fence. Short hits also go over the fence.

"I would like to see the Red Sox play in the Beehive and then count the .300 sluggers they would have.

"Boston is the best sports city in the world. So let's not spoil it by becoming one-sided when we have TWO good ball clubs.

"I suggest that the sports writers evenly divide the articles between the Bees and Sox, and permit the fans to cheer both clubs."

I shall publish in this column tomorrow some more of the letters I have received from the fans.

Family Enters Bowling Tourney

Friends Donate Many Worthy Bowling Prizes

By WALTER KILEY

Through the years the Boston Evening American-Daily Record candlepin bowling championships have won a legion of real friends.

These friends are both among the bowlers and the merchants of Boston.

In this latter class is the Colonial Provision Company, Inc., famous meat packers of 126 Cross street, Boston, who today came through handsomely with the donation of hundreds of pounds of their well known and delicious Master DeLuxe hams and Master smoked shoulders.

So now we have these fine edibles to stack up with our many Gruen watches, our several gifts from Washington Jewelry Company, from Horace Partridge Company and other kindly disposed concerns.

SPERO ON ROLL

And then along comes another fine friend, Lou Spero of the New England Doll & Novelty Co., 174 Washington street, Boston, who delivered to us today three of those new and justly popular Rolls candid cameras, those tiny picture-taking machines which have swept the country.

These Rolls cameras from N. E. Doll & Novelty carry a lifetime guarantee, take 16 pictures to the one roll and can be carried so easily in a side pocket or purse. They're truly grand prizes.

Entries are piling up. Among today's was one from the Lacount Class Bowling League of Somerville, a team composed of George Soar, Gordon Cameron, Lawrence Barnes, Douglas Frellick and Robert Burvey. All of these pin fans are in the singles and doubles, too. So are W. F. Bowering, and others of the same group.

O'Connell's Grille bowling team of Lowell, an outfit which hasn't lost a duck pin match this season and which is to compete in the National Duckpin Congress in Washington on April 1, is down to see what it can do with the candlepins. The lineup has Manuel Silveria, Henry Cohen, Winifred Chase, Bill O'Connell, Arthur Giguere and Arthur Lemke.

WHOLE FAMILY COMPETING

Perhaps one of the finest entries yet to be received comes from Newburyport where a lineup of three generations of the one family is going to contest at the Huntington Club. Included are a grandfather, three sons and a grandson. John C. White, Jr. is captain. Others of this White family are Fred, John C., Sr., Harold and George.

At this time we again warn that the tourney opens at the Huntington Club one week from Saturday, that it runs for 13 days, including three Saturdays and two full weeks (excluding Sundays) and that entries close next Tuesday at midnight.

May Seek New Permit For Garden Dog Racing

Blocked by a Supreme Court ruling from running dog races in Boston Garden, the Greyhound Racing Corporation met today to decide on whether to file a new petition with the Boston City Council.

Frank H. Stewart, counsel for the dog interests, said he would receive instructions from his clients at this conference.

The dog racing ban came in a decision by Supreme Court Justice Louis S. Cox, who decreed that the permit signed by City Council President George A. Murray, as acting mayor while Mayor Tobin was in Florida, is invalid.

Judge Cox, in a ruling granting an injunction to prevent the State Racing Commission from issuing a licens or granting dates for the racing, defined the powers of the acting mayor as limited to emergency measures.

Granting and signing of a permit for dog racing was not an emergency measure, Judge Cox ruled. Petition for the injunction was presented by Atty. George T. Lannigan, in a move to block dog racing here. It was not stated for whom he was acting.

Because of the injunction, the Greyhound Racing Corp., which proposed to conduct racing with pari-mutuel bettingat the Boston Garden, City Clerk Doyle said, will have to apply again to the Boston City Council for approval.

Contract Delay Little Worry to Howard Jones

By Associated Press

Five leading candidates among the pros for posts on the Ryder Cup team are Sammy Snead, Ralph Guldahl, Henry Picard, Dutch Harrison and Dick Metz . . . Sun Apollo, a full brother to Sun Beau, greatest money winner of all times, ran a poor last in a cheap claiming race at Tropical Park the other day . . . Jack Dempsey will put on a long tailed coat and be best man when Louis Magidson, manager of Jack's Broadway spot, is married next Sunday.

Howard Jones at Southern California hasn't been given a contract for 1939, but he's laughing. He's entirely surrounded by the best talent in years and is as good a bet as any to waltz home with the national title . . .

NOTICE—from now on Jean Bauer, Providence golferette, wants to be entered in tournaments as "Jean Estelle Bauer" . . . Wild Bill Boyd, the heavyweight, had to turn down an offer to fight Buddy Baer in Seattle next month because his handlers decided he needed more schooling . . . So many turned out for baseball at Michigan State that Coach John Kobe has to drill half the squad in the afternoon and the rest at night under floodlights . . .
